

State Bar of California Real Property Law Section,
Inverse Condemnation/Eminent Domain Subsection Presents

A Luncheon Program ~ One Hour MCLE Credit

The United States Supreme Court Opinion in Kelo v. City of New London

Program Description

In June the United States Supreme Court will issue its ruling in the Kelo v. City of New London case. The Kelo case focuses on the breadth of the Constitutional “public use” language and whether condemnation violates property rights when it is not to eliminate blight and instead is for purely economic development.

Michael Berger, Co-Chair of Manatt Phelps & Phillips LLP’s Appellate Practice Group, will break down the court’s opinion and discuss the future of redevelopment for the traditional purpose of eliminating blight and for other economic purposes. Mr. Berger is one of California’s preeminent appellate and condemnation lawyers. He has argued four eminent domain cases before the U. S. Supreme Court and published numerous articles on the right to take. Mr. Berger filed an Amicus brief in Kelo.

At the presentation, copies of the U. S. Supreme Court’s Kelo decision will be available.
